PHOTOGRAPHER

CAROLA PLÖCHINGER

My personal photographic work revolves around investigations of landscape – on the one hand, around the concept of the adopted country, and on the other hand, around the vulnerability of the landscape itself.

But I've always been curious about what drives people and why they do what they do. I love to tell their stories through images. In doing so, it is important to me to remain authentic and to create space for everyone to be themselves.

This leads to portraits or photo essays that you can use for your website, the annual report or publications to tell your story of the one of your company and your people.
